

Dunder Mifflin Paper Company

Employee Handbook

1. About Dunder Mifflin

Dunder Mifflin Paper Company is a regional paper and office-supplies company. Employees are expected to act professionally, protect company information, follow applicable company policies, and use company resources responsibly.

This handbook provides general guidance. Where a specific company policy contains a more detailed rule, the specific policy takes precedence.

2. Working Hours

Standard office hours are 9:00 AM to 6:00 PM, Monday through Friday, with a one-hour lunch break. Some teams may operate different schedules because of customer requirements, business operations, or manager-approved flexible arrangements. Employees working remotely must remain available during the company's core working hours specified in the Remote Work Policy.

3. Probation

New employees normally complete a six-month probation period. During probation, employees are expected to complete required onboarding, training, and compliance activities.

Remote-work eligibility normally begins after the probation period unless an exception has been approved by the employee's manager.

4. Confidential Information

Customer information, pricing information, internal financial information, employee records, and non-public business plans are considered confidential. Confidential information must only be stored, accessed, or shared through approved company systems. Employees must not send confidential company information to personal email accounts or store it on personal cloud-storage services.

5. Company Equipment

Company-issued laptops and other equipment remain company property. Employees must take reasonable care of company equipment and must report lost or stolen equipment to the appropriate IT or security team. Equipment purchases and reimbursements are governed by the applicable Procurement and Business Expense policies.

6. Business Expenses

Employees may be reimbursed for reasonable and necessary business expenses when those expenses comply with the Business Expense Policy. Employees should obtain required approval before making unusual or high-value purchases. Receipts and supporting documentation must be provided where required.

7. Business Travel

Business travel must be approved before booking. Employees travelling for approved business purposes may claim eligible travel expenses according to the Business Travel Policy.

Employees should use the company's approved booking process whenever available.

8. Employee Conduct

Employees are expected to treat colleagues, customers, vendors, and visitors professionally and respectfully. Company systems and equipment must be used primarily for legitimate business purposes and in accordance with company policies.

9. Policy Precedence

This handbook provides general guidance and does not replace detailed departmental policies. For questions involving leave, travel, expenses, remote work, IT security, benefits, or procurement, employees should consult the relevant policy.
